Subject: Inquiry about an article submitted to the Journal of Oral Rehabilitation on August 2, 2024

This is an external email.

Greetings,

On August 2, 2024, I submitted a paper, Experimentation Without Randomized Controls, for a special issue of your journal. Dr. Alan Glaros is the guest editor for this special issue. I have not received any news back about this publication and there is no evidence of any activity on the paper when I visited the author submission website. It is possible that your response got caught in my spam filter and it is possible that it was sent to the wrong email address.

I submitted the article under my faculty position email account (simons@umkc.edu) and that is the email that I would prefer to receive information about this article. You can also send an email to mail@pmean.com, which is the email address that I use for my independent consulting practice. Finally,

I have an account for personal emails, steve@steveandcathysimon.com. I will certainly respond to any emails sent to any of these accounts.

I have searched high and low including all three spam folders, but have found nothing. It is possible that I accidentally deleted a message from you. If so, please accept my apologies.

I am not in any rush on this paper, but I do worry about the total absence of any correspondence. other than an acknowledgement of submission on August 2.

I would appreciate any clarification you can provide about the status of my submission.
